

DISCLAIMER

Thanks for visiting our website. Before you go, a few points need to be made.

First, the purpose of this website is to provide information about the kind of work we do, our qualifications and our experience. It is not intended to contain legal advice, recommendations or an offer to perform services. The results of any prior cases that might be described here are provided only as examples and do not promise a similar outcome; like so many other things, results are context and content specific and cannot be guaranteed. While your inquiries are encouraged, readers should not take, or refrain from taking, any action – including choosing an attorney – based solely on information contained on this website without independent thought, investigation or legal representation

Second, contacting us through this web site does not, by itself, create an attorney-client relationship or contractually obligate CREIGHTON & ROSE, P.C., to represent you, regardless of the content of such communication.

Third, and in the same vein, please do not send us any unrequested confidential information prior to our formal acceptance of your case. There are a number of reasons for this. For one thing, unless and until we are your attorneys, we cannot guarantee the confidentiality of anything you send to us. For another, before we can agree to be your attorneys, we need to make sure there are no conflicts of interest with current clients, and that we are otherwise able to accept your case.

Finally, we're only human, and try as we might, we are far from perfect. As a result, the material in our website may contain errors of one sort or another. Consequently, CREIGHTON & ROSE, P.C., does not guarantee its accuracy, completeness or suitability.

Thanks again.
